Purpose: To offer a group of preteens/teens with similar communication targets an opportunity to further develop their social communication within a small group. They will have multiple opportunities to learn and practice their communication skills in specific social situations in a safe and interactive setting.

Using concepts from Michelle Garcia Winner's curriculum and other social cognitive tools, the group members will work on developing their social thinking skills, problem solving skills, and conversation skills. The skills taught during these sessions will equip the group members with knowledge for interacting with peers at school and other places in the community. Group members will be presented with various social scenarios and engage in discussion about what to say and do in these scenarios. Concepts will be taught through books, video clips, discussion, games and role-play.
